Standard Chartered calls for individual action on World AIDS Day

01 December 2011, Lagos: In celebration of World AIDS Day, representatives from Standard Chartered will remind individuals about the importance of prevention in fighting the pandemic as well as the need to challenge the stigma associated with HIV/AIDS.

As part of the bank's commitment to prevent HIV and AIDS in the wider community in Nigeria, on World AIDS Day, members of staff of the bank together with Nigeria Business Coalition on HIV and AIDS (NICUCCA) would conduct education and awareness sessions for all staff, guards, drivers and domestic workers of the members of staff. Elective and Confidential Testing and Counselling would also be offered on a voluntary basis.

Standard Chartered is one of the few financial institutions to proactively champion the importance of education in the workplace to prevent the spread of HIV/AIDS. In 1999, Standard Chartered launched Living with HIV, a work education programme, to respond to the detrimental impact HIV/AIDS was having on its employees in Africa. Living with HIV provides employees with the facts and tools to make safe lifestyle choices and avoid becoming infected or infecting others as well as removing the stigma and discrimination associated with the disease. The Bank was one of the first companies to take such an approach. The programme has, since, been rolled out to its offices globally.

As part of the Bank's employee policies, non-discriminatory/non-disclosure clauses protect any employee who may be affected by HIV and AIDS. The Bank also provides financial support to employees to help cover the cost of necessary anti-retroviral drugs when they are not freely available in their home country.

Last year Standard Chartered delivered on a Clinton Global Initiative commitment to educate 1 million people on HIV/AIDS, reaching 1.6 million by the end of the year. As part of its promise, the Bank shared its Living with HIV programme with more than 70 partners in Asia, Africa and the Middle East. As part of this initiative, Bank employees offered face-to-face workshops to participating organisations and local communities. In Nigeria through various partnerships, the bank has educated more than 600,000 people on HIV and AIDS.

Diran Olojo, Head, Corporate Affairs, Standard Chartered Nigeria says: “According to UNAIDS, the number of new HIV infections continues to outstrip the advances in treatment numbers. For every two people put on antiretroviral drugs, another five become newly infected. Education is, therefore, key to preventing the spread of HIV. Too many people are still reluctant about getting tested for HIV. We believe that everyone should know their status. In the absence of a cure or vaccine, the only hope of tackling HIV is to educate people on how to avoid contracting the virus in the first place – or passing it on if they are HIV positive.”

World AIDS Day

World AIDS Day on 1 December brings together people from around the world to raise awareness about HIV/AIDS and demonstrate international solidarity in the face of the pandemic. The day is an opportunity for public and private partners to spread awareness about the status of the pandemic and encourage progress in HIV/AIDS prevention, treatment and care in high prevalence countries and around the world.

Between 2011-2015, World AIDS Days will have the theme of "Getting to zero: zero new HIV infections. Zero discrimination. Zero AIDS related deaths". The World AIDS Campaign focus on "Zero AIDS related deaths" signifies a push towards greater access to treatment for all; a call for governments to act now. It is a call to honour promises like the Abuja declaration and for African governments to at least hit targets for domestic spending on health and HIV.
